SOME CONTRACTS OF THE PERSIAN PERIOD FROM
THE KH<sup>2</sup> COLLECTION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

BY GEORGE A. BARTON, PH.D.,

Associate Professor of Biblical Literature and Semitic Languages, Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The texts which are here published were copied during the summers of 1895 and 1896. They belong to the Kh<sup>2</sup> collection, which was purchased in the East some years ago for the University of Pennsylvania. It was obtained from the same source as the Kh collection, of which a notice was published in the HEBRAICA, Vol. VI, pp. 59, 60, by Professor Robert F. Harper.

Of the thirty-four texts here presented, two are from the reign of Cambyses,<sup>1</sup> twenty-seven from the reign of Darius, one from the reign of Xerxes (i. e., No. 30; cf. rev., ll. 5 and 11), and four from the reign of Artaxerxes. The texts are arranged below in chronological order.

Most of these texts are simple records of the loan of money or the transfer of food-stuffs. No. 2 is a contract to deliver considerable meat, dates, wheat, and an ibex at a private house in Babylon; it appears to be the provision for a large festival. No. 5 is a receipt for a sheep, purchased for a sacrifice. An interesting series (Nos. 7, 8, 11, 13, 16, 19, 22, 25, 26, 28, and 29) refers to the transactions of a woman, Aquba, the daughter of a slave, who dealt in provisions in the town of Shibtu, and who seems to have been in comfortable circumstances. She loans money, contracts with farmers for produce, loans clean wheat, to be paid in kind, and barter wheat for dates. These transactions extend through eight years. No. 8 refers to the loan of two-thirds of a shekel of money. It states that the sum is to be paid in a certain coin, but the tablet is illegible where the denomination of the coin was given. The amount of the loan makes the half-shekel coin impossible; it follows that the coin must have been the še, of which 180 made a shekel.<sup>2</sup> No. 10 records the gift of sacrifices to the temple of Shamash by a guild of carpenters. No. 16 is a contract on the part of a woman to deliver at a certain date a coat of mail. No. 24 is the lease of a house with a cracked wall, in which is embodied a stipulation for repairs.<sup>3</sup> No. 30, though much broken, is of great interest. It records the dissolution of the partnership of a company of herdsmen in the reign of Xerxes and the formation of another company. No. 31 is the merest memorandum of a loan, written in evident haste, without witnesses. No. 32 stipulates that after a certain date the rent of a house belonging to two brothers shall be devoted to a certain temple; that a certain man shall receive it from the agent of the owners and carry it to the temple, and another person who is designated shall receive it on behalf of the temple. No. 33 is a much-broken deed of sale of some property, the boundaries of which were carefully given. The tablet was only sun-dried and has been badly broken. No. 18 was carelessly written and contains several mistakes. For lack of space a list of the proper names contained in these tablets is not now given. It is hoped that it may be published in a future number of the JOURNAL. The Museum numbers of these tablets are as follows:
